

The Future of Historiography

Programme Event

International Committee of Historical Sciences | 26–30 August 2026 | Leipzig, Germany

DATE 27 Aug 2026, 14:30 - 16:30	LOCATION House 5 - SR 134
THEME G - Future Trends, Challenges, and Opportunities in the Historical Sciences	CONFERENCE International Committee of Historical Sciences

Overview

Where will the discipline of history be in 100 years from now? This panel looks to the future of historiography as an imperative for reflection and action in the present. It will do so via four globally distinguished voices who have played a shaping role in the history and theory of historiography. They will ask us to look through four windows to the future: “Anticipatory History,” “There Is No Going Back: The Future of Historiography,” “Rethinking Historical Authority: Who Gets to Author the Past in the Twenty-First Century?” and “Historiography as Seen from the Future.” Themes highlighted will include the future of the academy and universities; realising the power of time; history as navigator of multiple crises; the problem of historians as sole interpretive authority of the past; and the long shadow of the Anthropocene. The four panellists are globally distinguished contributors to historiography. Ewa Domańska is professor of theory and history of historiography at Adam Mickiewicz University, Poznan in Poland, visiting professor at Stanford University and a member of the Polish Academy of Sciences. She is known for advancing new and future-oriented approaches to the past, exploring how historical knowledge can shape different futures. Ethan Kleinberg is Distinguished Professor of History and Letters at Wesleyan University. He is editor in chief of History and Theory, co-founder of History Theory Revolt, and diagnostician who has laid bare the power of events, ethics and the ghosts of the past which can guide us to new modes of history. Lynette Russell is Mercator Professor at the University of Potsdam, Germany, and Sir John Monash Distinguished Professor at the Monash Indigenous Studies Centre, Australia. Her work on Australian Indigenous and First Nations histories has been recognized through multiple academic distinctions. Marek Tamm is Professor of cultural history at Tallinn University, Estonia, vice president of the Estonian Academy of Sciences, and editor of the Journal of the Philosophy of History, who has unravelled and rewoven the fabric of time to lay bare the challenges we must confront in the Anthropocene. The panel will be chaired by emeritus Professor Antoon De Baets, President of the International Commission for the History and Theory of Historiography, member of the Academia Europaea, and author of numerous books and articles on ethics, human rights, and history.

Participants

Convenor

- Daniel Woolf (Queen's University, Kingston)
- Marnie Hughes-Warrington (University of South Australia, Australia)

Chair

- Antoon De Baets (University of Groningen)

Panelists

- Ewa Domańska (Adam Mickiewicz University, Poznan)
- Ethan Kleinberg (Wesleyan University)
- Marek Tamm (Tallinn University)
- Lynette Russell (Monash University)

Papers

Introduction: Professor Pirenne Returns

Antoon De Baets (University of Groningen)

Anticipatory History

Ewa Domańska (Adam Mickiewicz University, Poznań)

There is No Going Back: The Future of Historiography

Ethan Kleinberg (Wesleyan University)

Historiography as Seen from the Future

Marek Tamm (Tallinn University)

Rethinking Historical Authority: Who Gets to Author the Past in the Twenty-First Century?

Lynette Russell (Monash University)

Source: <https://cish2026.recentglobe.org/events/the-future-of-historiography/>

Generated: 25/05/2026 02:15